Superstitions, based on BBC Learning English – News About Britain

One person in four in Britain is superstitious and they will do everything from hanging horseshoes over their fireplace to crossing their fingers, touching wood and absolutely never walking under a ladder. And they are careful about cats. Black cats are supposed to be the “relatives” of witches or warlocks, so if one is following you it's definitely bad luck – a witch is after you! On the other hand, if one crosses your path and continues then it's good luck because it hasn't noticed you. Old superstitions are still popular in the modern world. It is interesting that some people actually want to be unlucky because it helps them to avoid taking responsibility for their problems. It's easier to say 'I failed the exam because I'm just an unlucky person' than to admit that you didn't work hard enough.
